

THE ROAD TO SUCCESS

Students across Alberta are finding success with a learner's license study prep kit and app

By Taylor Masters

It's a well-kept secret that might just help you get ahead:

for four years, the Learner's License Prep Kit has been helping youth pass their learner's license exam all over Alberta. Through flashcards and a new mobile app, registered psychologists Dexe Stoutjesdyk and Michele Pentyluk have developed a test preparation kit that has helped many students pass their exam and get on the road.

Stoutjesdyk says the flashcards and app help you retain information and make you a better driver. "The online practice tests are great for testing the knowledge but the flashcards are great for learning the knowledge," she says.

Calem Beddow, a 14-year-old who just passed his learner's exam thanks to the kit, says those who use the learner's kit should study one chapter at a time using the flash cards to master the material before moving on. Then come back every now and then to review old chapters and keep the information fresh. The app, which launched last September, includes flash cards, definitions and tutorial videos, and tells you how much of each chapter you know. It helps you learn to recognize what you know and what you don't and works to help you understand the questions.

Sales of the kits help raise funds and awareness for the Learning Disability Association of Alberta's (LDA) Right to Read program. This program helps screen children at a young age for reading problems. So far they have raised over $200,000 for the cause.
